History of Lantern Making

Lanterns are believed to have originated in ancient China over 2,000 years ago during the Han Dynasty (206 BCE to 220 CE). Initially, they were made of bamboo frames covered with paper or silk. These lanterns were often used for religious and ceremonial purposes and symbolised hope for a bright future.

About WildHoney

WildHoney was born out of the Otways in 2018. It is a small, magical, humming hive of creatives that produces highly visual and interactive acts for street theatre, workshops in wonderment and outdoor performances. Each member brings a unique and high level of skills, and together they share a deep commitment to creating wild beauty and transformation. WildHoney was founded by Eloise Wood and Hoya Wolfgang and has become a unique brand and wonderful way to showcase and develop the talent of the Otways.

WildHoney acknowledges the Gadubanud and Gulidjan Country and Peoples of the lands upon which we live and work. Country that has afforded us the privilege to draw inspiration from the deep damp luscious valleys and sacred places scattered throughout this wild temperate rainforest. We are beneficiaries of all that grows here that not only feeds us physically but allows us to pursue our creative practice with nourished souls. We pay our gratitude and respects to the Local Aboriginal Community and to any Aboriginal people viewing this document.
